My Dearest Chris.

I have delayed writing because I thought it best. During the last week however it has bothered me so much and seemed so unfair that old friends should quit each other that I decided to write to see if you will forgive me and continue as we were.

Since I have left Memphis I have fallen into the old routine of office work and going out the same as before. You know Chris I can hardly believe we were together it was for such a short time and so suddenly done. I don't know myself how it happened to come down. I only know that I glad I did.

Since my visit I have been between the devil and the deep blue sea.
But I'll come out all right. You know I looked for you most of the day following our evening but could not find you. I just wanted to get a peep at you again before leaving without letting you see me. I want to thank you for our evening Chris and I will always remember it as one of the nicest in my life. I'm also glad that I met your mother and sunny boy and saw the hills and wood I've read about. It was all just as I expected. The place you stayed in Memphis was just what I could expect of Christine. Martha was as planned.

also. Most times when you hear a radio program the characters are entirely different than expected. The characters and setting of my southern trip were exactly as pictured except for Christine who was 100% more beautiful and sweet and interesting than ever described or expected possible. I really mean it Chris you are really one swell girl.

I'm glad that you liked the hat box I bought it in the store where Martha works. I hope to be able to see you again Chris and will let you know when I'm coming.

Please Chris write me and forgive me and let's remain the friends we were.

Ever your friend.
